The importance of the third-class school district, judged from the standpoint of the work it is charged to do, is fundamental and its efficiency of vital necessity to our state and national life. The heavy burden of responsibility that it carries and the great importance of its work, are largely overlooked because we are accustomed to consider rather the small individual district with its comparatively few pupils, than the aggregate number of districts in the state with the many thousands of pupils that these serve. Judgment, too, of how far and how well the district serves the people, should be based on the work of all the districts rather than that of any individual one, and manifestly, too, knowledge of state conditions in the aggregate must be had by him who can justly criticise our rural and village schools or safely plan for their improvement. It was a growing conviction of the imperative need of more knowledge of our rural schools from the standpoint of the State as a whole, for guidance in plans for their improvement, that prompted the planning and carrying forward of a...
