January 1943; a Paris nightclub. A transvestite singer accepts an offer to sing once a week at a club in the artsy district of the city, and in so doing starts a chain-reaction of personal turbulence for many characters that come within her circle of influence; turbulence that mirrors the relationship that France and Germany have developed by the end of the war. The club owner, a sharp business woman who has returned to Paris not only to snap up businesses failing because of the war, but also to find a man from her past and take revenge for his role in destroying the love she had with her fianc in college. Aside from revenge, her life goals are to assist with the resistance by supplying information, and make money. She is satisfied with the money that the transvestite singers popular show brings into the club, but is concerned by the feelings from her past that surface. The intoxicating appeal of the transvestite singer will cause the district mayor to see in her the haunting female that he has been in love with every since his first sexual experience. The two of them will develop a mutual passion via an exchange of intelligent and intense correspondence. It will also excite the buried and obsessive lust of a top officer of the German Intelligence currently stationed in Paris. Because the transvestite singer is the antithesis of the innocent and fresh French girls the German officer and his drunk friends raped two decades prior, causing them to hastily join the German military, he can finally suppress the guilt that has always prevented him from falling in love. The German officers...
