Another school, however, is of opinion that these questions are no concern of the physicists, who should make their theories fit the philosophers conceptions of these fundamental units. The theory of relativity consists of two parts, the old special theory, and the more recent general theory. The main philosophic achievement of the special theory of relativity is probably the recognition that the description of an event, which is admittedly only perfect if both the space and time co-ordinates are specified, will vary according to the relative motion of the observer; that it is impossible to say, for instance, whether the interval separating two events is so many centimetres and so many seconds, but that this interval may...
